RECORD

OF

2005-2015 : A Decade of
Northeast Asian History Foundation Publications

10 YEARS

For ten long years, the Northeast Asian History Foundation has published over 500 books, including research books and books for the general public, to bring the reader the joy of reading history and an easy access to useful historical sources.

They include: Featured Research and Research Series (in which local and international experts provided analyses of historical issues); Translation Series (books on Korean history published in other countries and translated into Korean); Reference Series (annotated collections of primary sources essential to the study of history); Excavation Reports (on the remaining sites of ancient Korea in Northeast Asia and Central Asia); and history books for the general public on the history of ancient Korean kingdoms, such as Gojoseon (Old Joseon), Koguryo, and Balhae, written in an easy-to-read way to dispel the notion that history is a difficult subject.

The Northeast Asian History Foundation will continue to strive for books that bring the reader the joy of reading history as well as in-depth knowledge.

Despite countless studies that have been done on the Gwanggaeto Stele, many historical facts about King Gwanggaeto and his era still remain in mystery. The most important key to unraveling this mystery is the Gwanggaeto Stele. This book contains the comprehensive research findings presented at the international conference, hosted by the NAHF and held in 2014 in China and Korea on the occasion of the 1,600th anniversary of the erection of the Gwanggaeto Stele. The book covered issues regarding the rubbed copies of the Stele, which are at the heart of controversies surrounding the deciphering of the Stele inscriptions, and attempted to examine the international status and nature of the Gwanggaeto Stele in the context of the East Asian world.

225x151mm | 342 pages | 2015 | KRW 14,000 | ISBN 978-89-6187-393-2

"Unity is key to survival" is the lesson learned by Korea, China, and Japan during the Asian Financial Crisis of 1998. Yet, unity is still not in sight due to recurring conflict among one another, caused and intensified by such varied and complex factors as issues of international politics and economy resulting from the rise of China, historical issues and nationalism, and the importance of seas and territorial disputes. To improve the bilateral relations between China and Japan, and also between Korea and Japan, is the most essential to creating a system of cooperation among the three Northeast Asian countries. This book is a result of joint research by experts from those three countries, and it proposes policy options to guide those nations toward a cooperative relationship in the context of history and international politics.

Northeast Asian History Foundation

223x152mm | 324 pages | 2014 | KRW 12,000 | ISBN 978-89-6187-334-5

The Japanese Prime Minister's recent visit to the Yasukuni Shrine has outraged many people as it has been viewed as act of denying the post-war order and justifying wars of aggression. While this is a very important issue, there is another equally important issue, especially for the Korean people to remember to address, regarding those Koreans who were enshrined in the Yasukuni Shrine without permission. This book consists of the briefs that were prepared by Korean legal professionals in support of a lawsuit to remove those Koreans from the Yasukuni Shrine and submitted to the court of law in Japan, and have been updated, revised, and reorganized by issue. It is hoped that this book will contribute to the understanding of controversies surrounding the Yasukuni Shrine, and to the continued efforts of Korea and Japan to create a desired future together.

: History and Treasure

By SUGIMOTO Kazuki, Translated by SEO Gaksu, SONG Wanbeom, and SEO Bogyeong
225x252mm | 296 pages | 2015 | KRW 11,000 | ISBN 978-89-6187-364-2

This book is an account of a place called Syosoin. Located in Nara(奈良), the ancient capital of Japan, Syosoin is the royal storehouse of artworks, artifacts, documents, and more. In 8th-century Japan, every government office or large temple had its own Syosoin for storing important items. Over the course of history, all but the Syosoin of Nara have disappeared. Aside from the fact that it is the only extant one in the world, the Syosoin of Nara is significant, especially for the Korean, because some items preserved in its collection, such as the Silla village document, carry the evidence that the culture of ancient Korean kingdoms, such as Silla and Baekje, was introduced to Japan. This book will be a guide into the past and present of Syosoin which was little known in Korea.

The Russian Military Documents related to Korea Housed in the State Archive of the Russian Federation

Compiled and Translated by PARK Jonghyo

257x188mm (B5) | 272 pages | 2015 | KRW 13,000 | ISBN 978-89-6187-372-7

Since the former Soviet Union collapsed, its archival repositories, which were classified according to periods or political themes, have been either renamed or merged. As a result, the Russian military documents related to Korea have been also sorted into groups by date and relocated accordingly. For instance, the military documents from the period of the Russian Empire up until the Russian Revolution are housed in the Russian State Military Archive, post-Revolution and pre-WWII documents in another archive with an almost identical name, and post-WWII and contemporary documents in the Central Archive of the Russian Ministry of Defense or the Russian State Archive of Socio-Political History, respectively. To research Korea-Russia military relations, it is essential to study the documents housed in these four facilities, plus the Russian State Naval Archive. While the Russian State Naval Archive had been introduced to the academic community before, the sources in the other archives had remained as inaccessible mystery, until this seminal book introduced them to the Korean academic community for the first time.

Historical Records on Modern Korea-Japan Relations

: The Record of Yanagawa Shigeoki's Public Affairs(柳川調興公事記録)

Translated by KIM Sangjun and YOON Yoosook

257x188mm | 408 Pages | 2015 | KRW 18,000 | ISBN 978-89-6187-392-5

The Yanagawa clan had an extraordinary history as a vassal of the Tsushima Domain who also had a special relationship with those in power at the central government, such as the shogun of the Edo shogunate. Growing up in the background of the shogunate, Yanagawa Shigeoki personally served the shogun, the man of supreme power. As his own power and influence grew, Yanagawa Shigeoki began to look down on his lord So Yoshinari. The conflict between the two inevitably grew, and reached a point where they filed charges against each other with the shogunate. In the course of deliberation on both parties, it came to light that the Tsushima Domain had repeatedly altered credentials in its diplomacy with Joseon (Korea) over the years. This prompted the shogunate's decision to reform its system of foreign relations. This historical record from the 1630s on the legal action between So Yoshinara, the lord of the Tsushima Domain, and his vassal Yanagawa Shigeoki offers a detailed look into the overhaul of the system of foreign relations between Korea and Japan in the early 17th century.

The Annotated Translation of the Stories of Foreign Nations in the Official Histories of China Series

: The First Interpretation of the Stories of East Asian Countries

The Annotated Translation of the Stories of Foreign Nations in the Official Histories of China series is designed to identify the foreign nations in The Stories of Foreign Nations in the official histories of China, and correctly understand the ideological principles and framework underlying their perception of foreign countries.

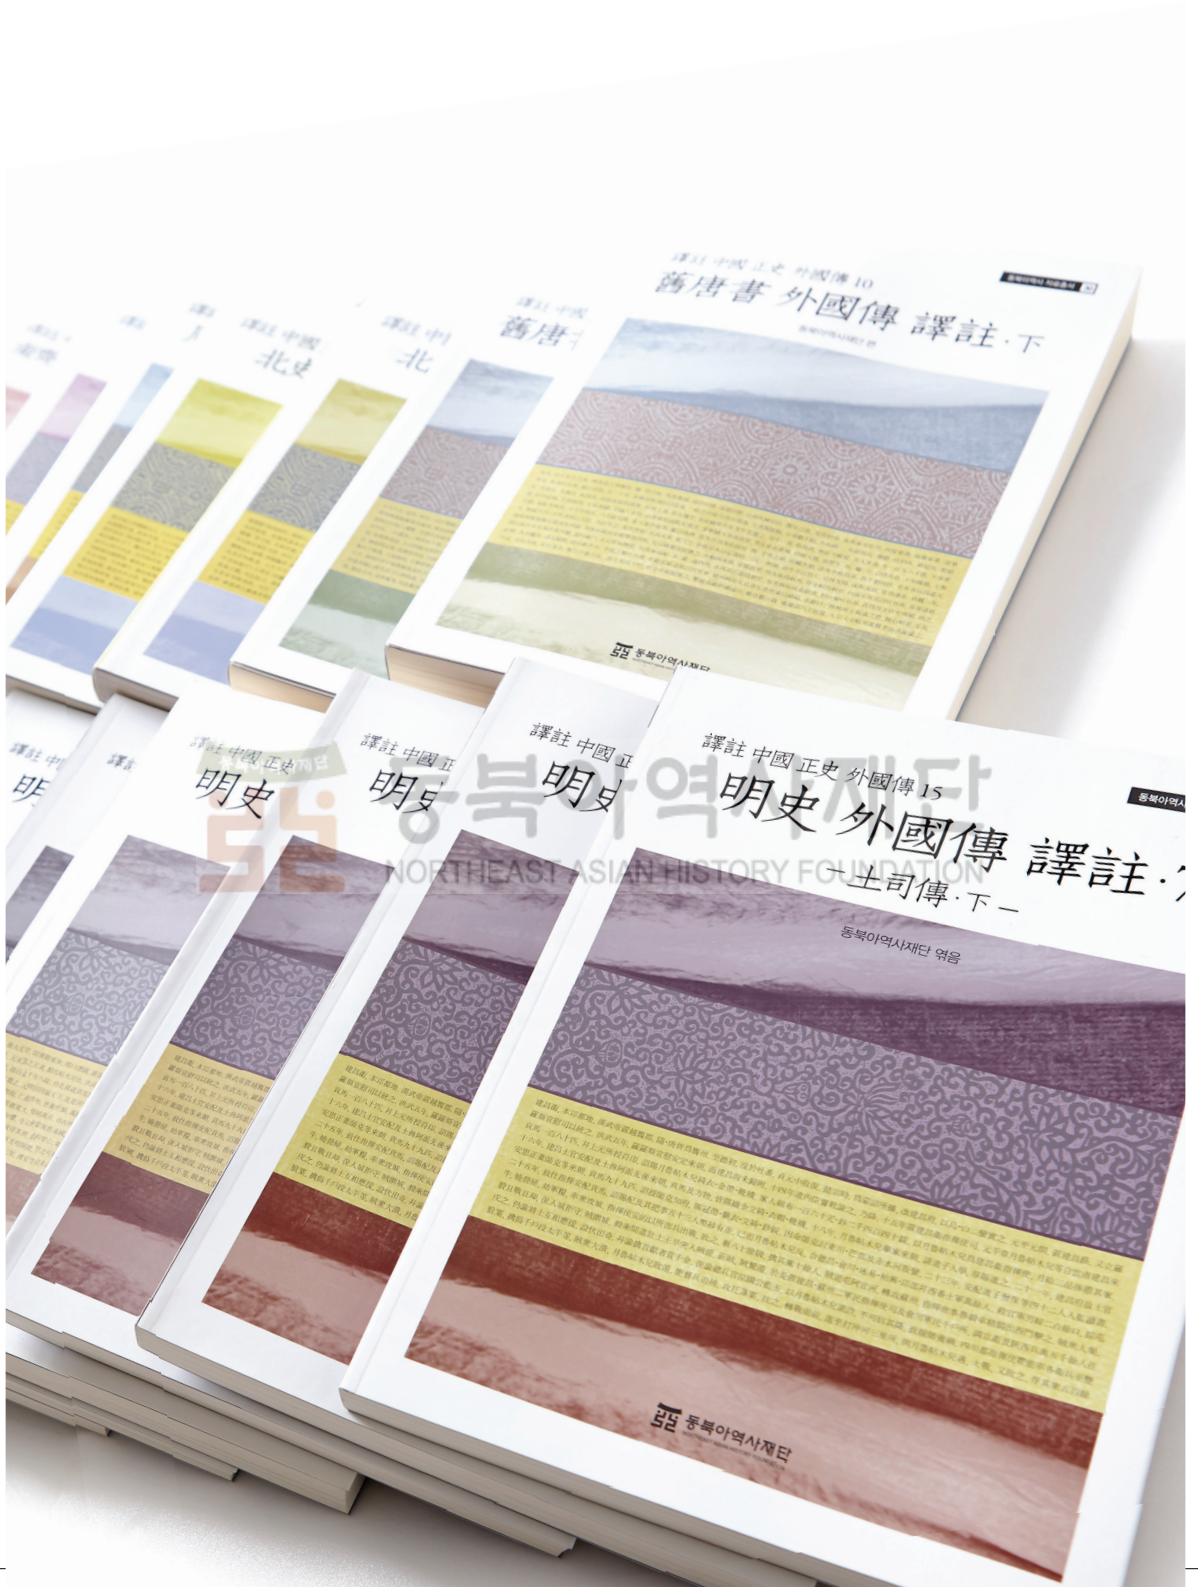

In principle, the official histories of China served the purpose of establishing a unified perception of history by state power, although the motivation or process of compilation differed from period to period, and it was inevitable that their structure or content strongly reflected the positions of the Chinese dynasties.

What made the official Chinese histories still worth translating and annotating was that their perception of foreign countries not only reflected the situations of the time but also had the potential as a reference that captured the essence of the Sinocentric perceptions of history, borders, and the world. While the Chinese dynasties left behind extensive records of other countries in The Stories of Foreign Nations included in their official histories, the neighboring countries or peoples didn't leave behind as many historical records written from their point of view.

In this respect, the correct understanding and research of The Stories of Foreign Nations in the official histories of China is expected to contribute to understanding not only the history and culture of pre-modern East Asian countries but also various East Asian international relations, including Korea-China relations.

Edited by Northeast Asian History Foundation

225x152mm | 200 pages | 2015 | KRW 12,000 | ISBN 978-89-6187-394-9, 978-89-6187-326-0(Set)

The word 'Altai' is familiar to Korean people, but not many of them may know exactly what the Altai region is like and what its characteristics are. This book provides comprehensive information about the Altai, a great mountain range that goes through several countries, such as Russia, Kazakhstan, Mongolia, and China, and a description of the history and culture of this region. To provide the reader with an at-a-glance overview of the history and culture of such a vast region, the book divides the Altai into four areas (Mongol, Gorno, Xinjiang, and Kazakh), and itself into four corresponding volumes. This particular volume gives a description of the history and culture of the Xinjing area, located in the southern Altai in the Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region of present-day China.

Revisiting the Fifty Years of the Agreement between South Korea and Japan, Volume IV

By DOH Shiwhan, JANG Bakjin, JANG Seyun et al.

223x152mm | 308 pages | 2015 | KRW 16,000 | ISBN 978-89-6187-369-7, 978-89-6187-279-9(Set)

This is the fourth installment of the research series that revisits the fifty years of the Agreement between South Korea and Japan, and it is focused on addressing "legal and policy challenges for the relief of the victims of Japanese colonial rule." In particular, the rulings in cases brought against Japan by China, or against the Netherlands by Indonesia, seeking compensation for damage caused by colonial rule or aggressive war, were reviewed to shed new light on the legal and policy challenges for the relief of the victims of Japanese colonial rule, and establish Japan's state responsibility. It is hoped that the results of this research will help Korea and Japan share the right perception of history and lay a foundation for a true historical reconciliation and a peace community.

The Korea-Japan Talks and the Korea-Japan Agreement, and the Subsequent Korea-Japan Relations

By CHUNG Jaejeong

210x148mm (A5) | 192 pages | 2015 | KRW 12,000 | ISBN 978-89-6187-363-5

This book was written with a focus on the Korea-Japan Agreement which laid down the framework of Korea-Japan relations for the years that followed Japan's defeat in WWII and Korea's liberation from Japanese colonial rule. The Korea-Japan Agreement was concluded and took effect in 1965 after fourteen years of on-and-off negotiations between the two countries (i.e. Korea-Japan Talks). In the subsequent fifty years, the Korea-Japan Agreement has been revised in some parts, and updated in others, without changes in the provisions, to better serve their purposes. Therefore, for the proper understanding of the nature, content, and significance of the Korea-Japan Agreement, it is also necessary to take a comprehensive and systematic look at the Korea-Japan Talks and the subsequent Korea-Japan relations with a long-range view in the context of history.

In the Huanren and Jian regions of China, there are more sites of Koguryo than one can visit before running out of time. This book features a selection of major must-visit sites from these regions, and related anecdotes in history. Also featured are suggested routes and maps, which will make this book a good travel guide for anyone who embarked on a journey in search of the remaining sites of Koguryo. The book also features the fortress of Koguryo still standing in the Liadong Peninsula, the remaining sites in what had become urban areas in Shenyang and Dandong, and old tales that will take the reader into the vast and dynamic world of the history of Koguryo.

Old Joseon, Dangun, and Buyeo(Revised)

Northeast Asian History Foundation

225x152mm | 228 pages | 2015 | KRW 15,000 | ISBN 978-89-6187-380-2

Old Joseon as the first country ever built by the Korean people in history, and Buyeo as the link in Korean history that connects Old Joseon to the Three Kingdoms, hold special meaning to us Koreans. However, Old Joseon, Dangun, and Buyeo belong to the realm of prehistory rather than history. In particular, Dangun, the founder of Old Joseon, is a mythical figure open to many interpretations. This book is an attempt to understand Old Joseon, Dangun, and Buyeo by taking a holistic approach to the subjects that avoids narrow and limited views and methodologies and draws on different fields ranging from archaeology to anthropology to ethnology.

III. Society & Culture: LEE Jonggu, ISOZAKI Noriyo et. al, 528 pages, KRW 33,000

The History of Korea-Japan Relations 1965-2015 series is designed to examine the political, economic, and socio-cultural aspects of Korea-Japan relations in an effort to provide a balanced and objective view of their fifty-year history on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of the normalization of diplomatic ties between the two countries. As a collection of select papers that provided multifaceted analyses and reviews of the past fifty years, this book is expected to be a good reference to understand the present of Korea-Japan relations, and shape new vision for the future. ※ This series of books is based on the results of research by the Northeast Asian History Foundation, and has been published by the Korean publisher Yeoksagonggan.

Northeast Asian History Foundation

305x217mm | 416 pages | 2015 | KRW 40,000 | ISBN 978-89-6187-366-6

Hoeryeong is a hub of transportation that connect North Korea to China across the border along the Duman and Abrok rivers and also to Russian Primorsky Krai. The NAHF is continuing with its efforts to support the excavation of Balhae sites in North Korea, which has resulted in the publication of Balhae Sites in Bugeori, and, more recently, of this report on the excavation of Balhae sites in Hoeryeong. Since the old Balhae sites are found in the areas of present-day Russia, China, and North Korea, it is important to continue collaboration with these countries. That is where the significance of this book lies as a joint North-South Korean report on the excavation of Balhae sites. More significantly, some graves and relics found during this excavation project are the evidence that Balhae carried on the heritage of Koguryo.

Northeast Asian History Foundation

It was the late 3rd to early 4th centuries that Koguryo, having advanced to the south, completely occupied the Hwanghae Province area (of present-day North Korea). From that point on, Koguryo began building fortresses across that area. After relocating its capital to Pyeongyang, Koguryo constructed or refurbished fortresses in the area, including Jangsu Fortress in southern Pyeongyang, and established defense systems for local and coastal fortresses. Afterwards, on the strength of the vast fields and the abundant supply of iron in Hwanghae Province, Koguryo not only grew its economy rapidly but also laid a solid foundation for advancing to the south for the unification of the three kingdoms. This book gives a summary, with photographs, of the characteristics of the remaining fortresses of Koguryo in Hwanghae Province, and a description of the technologies used by the people of Koguryo in building fortresses.

Northeast Asia is the geopolitical center of the world's civilization, and its history is a part of human history that has served as a link between the past and the present, and between the East and the West. The historical territory of Balhae lies in the areas of present-day Northeast China, North Korea, and Russian Primorsky Krai. Besides, the amount of remaining records on Balhae is very limited. Therefore, investigating and studying the Balhae sites found in these areas is an important undertaking that could help overcome that limitation. The Kraskino Balhae fortress, located in the southern tip of Russian Primorsky Krai, is home to Yeomju(鹽州), one of the sixty-two provinces of Balhae. Since its inception, the NAHF has continued to excavate this Yeomju fortress, and publish annual excavation reports, jointly with the Institute of History, Archaeology and Ethnography of the Peoples of Far East of Russia. This book contains the best results to date, which are expected to enhance the value of this report as a reference on Balhae sites.

A History of Korean-Japanese Interaction from Prehistory to Modern Times

By the Korean History Textbook Society and the Japanese History Education Society
B5 | 548 pages | 2014 | KRW 28,000 | ISBN 978-89-6187-353-6

Korea and Japan are in conflict over territorial and historical issues, but there was a time in history when the two countries were on friendly terms, exchanging their envoys and culture. The conflict arose as the two countries began interpreting the same historical events differently, especially after one was colonized and ruled over by the other in the modern period of history. Their unwillingness to compromise their position on historical issues is fueling the conflict. Therefore, it is an important challenge for Korea and Japan to find common ground in their perception of history. This book was written on the basis of the common perception of history achieved through ten years of symposia and visits to the other countries by researchers from the two countries who were committed to overcoming historical conflict and achieving historical reconciliation between their countries. The book has the potential for many uses as an introduction to general history for the general public as well as secondary school students and teachers.
